TRIP DETAILS-

Day one will be the appetizer, Little Red Trails just three kilometres north-east of Prince Albert.

The beauty of these trails is that they were designed by skiers for skiers. This means that practically anyone from newbies on their first ski outing to adrenalin junkies can find a trail to suit their taste. With the varied topography at Little Red Trails, there's a hill to challenge every ability, including lots of tame terrain for beginners.

The ski trails are fully enveloped by the snow-laden forest which makes for great scenic appeal. It also provides a reassuring atmosphere for beginners to gain confidence in their cross-country skiing ability. But more than that, the trails are a fabulous wilderness retreat for everyone - novices and experienced skiers alike. It's a good place to seek solace for the urban-weary soul!

There are two warm-up huts at each end of the trail system, complete with wood stoves, firewood and outdoor privies.

Day 2 and 3 Prince Albert National Park

The park lies within a natural transition zone between the boreal forest and aspen parklands, and contains the largest protected area of southern boreal mixed wood forest in western Canada. It is truly a gem in the province.

Day Two will feature 48 kilometres over 5 easy to moderate trails. Some of which start close to our accommodation within the townsite area of Waskesui.

Day three will include the option to bus out to the Crean Lake Trail about 10 kilometres north of the townsite.

The bus leaves Regina from The Normanview Mall at 9th Avenue and McCarthy Street at 8:00 am. Participant vehicles may be left in the parking spots north of the Cineplex, right up against the curb facing 9th Avenue North.

They do not require the licence plates as long as they are left in that area.

If they park somewhere else they may be ticketed/towed as they don't normally allow overnight parking on the premises.

Supper will be in Saskatoon on the way home.

Expected return time to Regina Monday, between 9:30 PM and 10:30 PM.
